Letter from our President

Sawadee ka ISB family!

In just over a month Michele and I will be meeting with movers to get the truck loaded so we can make our road trip to Scottsdale. Yes, she and I are driving the rental truck to this reunion. I sure hope it has a good air conditioner!

The name badges are almost finished. New items for The Shack are being shipped to storage in Scottsdale. Volunteers are stepping up. A good number of ISBers are making their first biennial reunion. The excitement is building!

After facing my own health challenge this year, I realize more and more just how important it is to stay connected with my ISB family. Since our last reunion, our Forever Friends screens have been updated with almost 60 photos of alumni and faculty who have passed. That's why you don't miss a reunion. You never know who will be added to our memorial from one reunion to the next.

Many of us went to our first reunion thinking no one would remember us. We didn't realize that there would be lots of people who remembered us from our days at ISB. We reconnected and restarted those friendships. And we didn't realize that the new friends made at the reunions would become lasting connections that carried over beyond the reunions. I'll end this with a poem about friends. It's one I've loved for most of my life.

New Friends and Old Friends

by Joseph Parry

Make new friends, but keep the old;
 Those are silver, these are gold.
 New-made friendships, like new wine,
 Age will mellow and refine.
 Friendships that have stood the test—
 Time and change—are surely best;
 Brow may wrinkle, hair grow gray,
 Friendship never knows decay.
 For 'mid old friends, tried and true,
 Once more we our youth renew.
 But old friends, alas! may die,
 New friends must their place supply.
 Cherish friendship in your breast—
 New is good, but old is best;
 Make new friends, but keep the old;
 Those are silver, these are gold.

See you in Scottsdale,

Kathy Beaird

A SPECIAL MESSAGE

ISB TEACHER HAROLD ALBERT

I've been part of the ISB family since I came to work at ISB for the 1982-83 school year. Over the years I have served as a high school math teacher, coach, and assistant athletic/activities director. In 2018 I became semi-retired as I split my time between two roles: ISB's Alumni Coordinator and as the IASAS Conference Administrator. As the proud husband of my beautiful wife, Mallika, a father of two ISB alumni - Achara (Class of 2004) and Liliana (2009) - and a proud grandfather to two rambunctious grandsons, I find joy in continuing to do meaningful work in my 70s. I welcome connections from all alumni - feel free to reach out through email, Facebook, LinkedIn, or phone, and look forward to my attendance at the July 2025 Network reunion in Scottsdale, Arizona. I especially look forward to sharing plans with the Network regarding ISB's 75th Anniversary, with the 'main events' taking place towards the end of January of 2027.

One note about my work as the IASAS Conference Administrator: IASAS, the International Association of Southeast Asia Schools, is an athletic and activities conference that started in 1982. For most alumni members of the ISB Alumni Network Association you will be pleased to know that IASAS is a direct off-shoot of the Bangkok-Singapore Games that were started in 1962 and are an integral memory of the students who attended ISB in the 60's and 70's.

The memorable Bangkok-Singapore Games did not end, they turned into a six school conference that is highly regarded worldwide. Soccer, Volleyball, Cross Country, Model United Nations, Art/Film, Basketball, Rugby/Touch, Tennis, Swimming, Speech/Debate, Music, Dance/Drama/Tech, Baseball/Softball, Track & Field, Badminton, Golf and Chess are all part of the IASAS experience for the student participants from the six member schools. It should be noted that IASAS, now in its 43rd year of existence, would not have been possible without the iconic Bangkok-Singapore Games.

ISB IN THE EIGHTIES!

HISTORY OF OUR SCHOOL - BRANCHING OUT, EXPANDING ISB PROGRAMS IN THE 1980S

As International School Bangkok (ISB) entered the 1980s, the Vietnam era was indeed over. The student enrollment, which had peaked at over 3,600 students in 1967, now stabilized at around 1,100. Important events like the House Games and the ever-present student group, the Young Internationals, were phased out and replaced by other events and other organizations.

Nonetheless, the effect of the Vietnam era on the school had not waned. The money poured into ISB by the U.S. Government meant that the school had well-resourced science labs and libraries, audiovisual equipment, and support positions such as a school psychologist, special education teachers, reading specialists, and a speech therapist. Thus, even though by the 80s, two-thirds of the student population was cut, ISB was still well-positioned to be the best international school in Thailand and one of the leading such institutions in the region.

The Inception of IASAS

One event that had not changed was the Bangkok-Singapore Games, which started in the spring of 1962 and was still one of the school year's highlights. However, in the early 80s, the International School of Kuala Lumpur (ISKL) joined ISB and Singapore American School (SAS) to form the Triangular Games. This change did not last long, as Heads of Schools around the region made it known that they were interested in forming larger athletic and activities conferences. It was probably at an EARCOS Conference in Hong Kong in 1981 that the idea of starting the Interscholastic Association of Southeast Asian Schools (IASAS) became a reality. Primarily spearheaded by the Heads of Schools from ISKL, SAS, and Jakarta International School (JIS), this organization was modeled after similar conferences in Southern Asia and Europe..

IASAS

It wasn't too long after that that Athletic Directors and other individuals from schools in the region met at the old Singapore American School campus on Kings Road tasked with creating the organization. As we now know, the result was IASAS, which formally started in October of 1982 with four schools: JIS, SAS, ISKL, and ISB. International School Manila (ISM) joined the conference the following year, while Taipei American School (TAS) joined the group in 1986, creating the six-school conference that has flourished ever since.

The very first event for the organization, IASAS Soccer & Volleyball, took place in Kuala Lumpur in October of 1982. Our ISB Boys' Volleyball team, coached by Athletic Director Colleen Perry, won gold in that inaugural event. Ms. Perry's son, Cameron, is actually an Elementary PE teacher at ISB today. At the urging of many organizers, a cultural component, the Cultural Convention, was also instituted that first school year.

The first IASAS event hosted on the ISB campus was the Cultural Convention in April of 1983, with competitions in debate and forensics, music, drama, and even a knowledge bowl.

Now in its 43rd year of existence and widely recognized as one of the premier international school activities and athletics conferences globally, we can only thank those who started the Bangkok-Singapore Games and all of those individuals who helped to create such a remarkable organization.

EXPANSION GOALS

Entering the 1980s, ISB had identified a few growth opportunities: expanding the athletics and activities programs; increasing the reach of its English as a Second Language (ESL) program; opening up the campus to the growing number of community groups such as the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Bangkok Baseball Association (BBA), and others; last but not least maintaining and improving its college-prep curriculum.

With these areas defined as goals for the school, ISB sought to improve itself. Aiming to serve better and make the school more attractive to an international clientele while ensuring that ISB graduates would be able to gain admission to the finest universities in the world.

REUNION SPECIAL WELCOME TO ARIZONA

BY TERESA MARTIN, DIRECTOR OF REUNIONS

Welcome to Arizona – the 48th state to join the Union which was on Valentines Day in 1912. It's the sixth largest state and boasts the largest percentage of its land designated as American Indian lands. There are 22 tribes in Arizona, the largest being the Navajo Nation.

Arizona is known for our five “C”s: copper, cotton, cattle, citrus and of course, climate. It is a diverse and fascinating state that offers so much to experience from the Grand Canyon to our southern border, hiking to world-renowned resorts and spas, wineries to biker bars.

Surrounding the Phoenix area are towns such as Cave Creek which has nightly rodeos and line dancing at the Buffalo Chip Salon.

And not to be missed,
wild biker bars!

Arcosanti is further up I-17 which you will pass on your way to Sedona, which is an absolutely must see/experience. Arcosanti is an experimental town that was started in 1970 by Paolo Solari, the experiment being an attempt to live frugally within a limited environmental footprint. It's meant to integrate the design of architecture with ecology.

More well known are the bronze bells that can be found at his foundry, Cosanti, in Scottsdale. Worth a stop to add a lovely "charm" to your deck or oak tree in the back yard. They ship.

Continuing up I-17 is Sedona, approximately 90 minutes from Phoenix, very doable in one day. And, I must say it is not to be missed. Well-known for its beautiful red rock buttes, steep canyon walls and pine forests that you can hike through and around. Jeep and balloon tours are exceptionally popular adventures to immerse yourself in Sedona's unique beauty. Love to hike? This is the place for you. Check out the website!

Many claim the town is a spiritual center with numerous vortex which are swirling centers of energy conducive to healing. It also boasts a large arts community with many opportunities to purchase every form of art imaginable.

Another day trip is to head to Cottonwood just south of Sedona. Kayak down the Verde River to cool off – one trip has you ending at Tantrum Winery with a wine tasting. Arizona has a pretty darn good wine industry, and this is the perfect way to try some out. Check out the website!

Also close to Sedona and Cottonwood is Jerome, an old copper mining town built on the side of a mountain. It once boasted a population of 15,000 and was known as the “wickedest town in the West” – it’s now around 450 and probably still a bit wicked. Lots of excellent art galleries/shops, restaurants and wineries.

Four and a half hours north of Phoenix, the Grand Canyon is the ultimate way to experience all things Arizona. It's truly awe inspiring. The brave will want to try out the Sky Walk. The adventurous can hike down into the Canyon. <https://www.nps.gov/grca/index>.

The ultimate experience is to white water raft down the Colorado although those of us in the know, are very aware that there's no white in the water, it's really "chocolate." One of my white ISB reunion shirts is now a lovely brown. There are enough rapids to keep your heart beating a bit faster than normal.

I truly could share pages and pages of what makes Arizona unique and these suggestions are just a few. Other areas just as wonderful to visit are Monument Valley, Canyon de Chelly, Petrified Forest and Painted Desert, Lake Mead, Lake Havasu (home of the Queen Mary), Lake Powell, Hoover Dam and of course Winslow, AZ where you too can stand on a corner and "Take it Easy."

Come early and stay late – there's so much to do and see!

In case you missed our other newsletters which also highlight what to do and see in Arizona, please follow the links.

LEGACIES OF WAR

BY: DANAE HENDRICKSON

When I think about war, I think about my mother.

She fled Laos during the war in the 1960s—crossing jungles in silence, hiding in caves, and eventually making it across the Mekong River into a refugee camp in Thailand. She rarely spoke about what she had been through. When she passed away in 2013 after a long battle with ALS, I realized how much I didn't know about her story—or mine.

It wasn't until I was nine months pregnant with my first child that I stumbled upon Legacies of War. In one afternoon, I read nearly everything on their website. That was the first time I learned the full truth: that the U.S. dropped millions of bombs on Laos, Cambodia, and Vietnam—many of which never exploded. And even now, more than 50 years later, they continue to kill and injure civilians, especially children.

CONTINUED: LEGACIES OF WAR

That discovery changed everything for me. It gave me words for the silence I grew up with. It gave me purpose. Today, I work with Legacies of War to preserve the history my mother couldn't tell, and to advocate for a future where no family has to live in fear of bombs buried beneath their rice fields or schoolyards.

At this reunion, I'm not coming to lecture—I'm coming to connect. Many of you lived in Southeast Asia during that time, or have your own stories shaped by war. My hope is that we can meet in a space of shared memory and collective responsibility.

We are in a critical moment. With global conflicts escalating and U.S. foreign aid under intense scrutiny, there is a real risk that this work will be deprioritized or defunded. That's why we need community—people like you, who remember this history not just as headlines, but as lived experience. Your voice, your story, still matters.

I look forward to being in community with you—to reflect, to remember, and to imagine a future free from the remnants of war.

Recipe

Chinese Broccoli with Oyster Sauce

Submitted by
Tony Diefert
Class of 1984

Ingredients:

- Chinese broccoli (Gai Lan)
- Fresh garlic 5 or 6 cloves
- Oyster sauce
- Soy sauce
- About ½ Tsp sugar and white pepper each

Procedure:

- Cut thick Chinese broccoli stems on a sharp bias into thin slices. Thinner stems can be chopped into 2-inch pieces. Once you get to the leaves, cut them into bite-sized chunks. Keep the stems and leaves separated.
- Smash the garlic with the side of your knife and roughly chop
- In a wok or frying pan, fry the garlic in a little oil over medium-low heat for a minute or so until light golden.
- Add broccoli stems and stir fry for about 30-60 seconds
- Add the leaves, oyster sauce, soy sauce, sugar and white pepper and stir fry for an additional minute or so
- Remove from heat immediately once the leaves look wilted but not completely collapsed.
- Serve immediately and enjoy

Recipe

Skagenröra

Skagen is a coastal place in south of Sweden with great shrimp

Submitted by
Anna Hellberg

Ingredients to make 4 portions
Preparation time: 15 minutes

Ingredients:

- 1 cup cooked and peeled shrimp
- 1/4 c mayonnaise
- 1/4 c creme fraiche
- 1/2 bundle of dill
- 1 lemon
- 1 small pinch salt
- 1 pinch svartpeppar (black pepper)
- Optional 1/2 teaspoon cognac
- Toast or baked potatoes to serve on

Procedure:

1. Put some shrimp aside for garnish and chop the rest just a little bit
2. Put in a bowl and mix with mayonnaise and crème fraiche.
3. Chop the dill finely but save some for garnish. Take some lemon zest and some lemon juice (about 1 teaspoon) add all in the bowl.
4. Mix and keep cold until serving time
5. Serve on toast or on top of baked potatoes, topped with the garnish and a slice of lemon.

See you soon
